PREFACE.

The inception as well as the compilation and publication of this work are entirely due to Mr. Franklin H. Hazelton of Portland. Some two years ago, he visited Dr. Lapham in Augusta, and, saying that he knew scarcely anything of his ancestors prior to his grandfather, desired him to trace his line if practicable back to his immigrant ancestor. This in due course of time was accomplished, much to his gratification. Meantime, as is generally the case, the interest grew upon him, and in addition to his own ancestral line, he wished to know something of other branches of the family widely scattered over the country, and then it was that he conceived the idea of having gathered up the records, and having published in book form, a genealogy of the Hazelton family of the United States. Not feeling able to take the entire risk of the expense of the compilation and publication of such a book, he concluded to make an appeal to other members of the family with the view of raising a publication fund. To this end, he printed circulars and addressed them to all such persons bearing the name as could be found. This circular set forth in full, what was desired to be accomplished, and was enclosed with a blank for family records. This effort on the part of Mr. Hazelton was almost entirely barren of results. A few of the many who received the circular responded, but the encouragement given to the enterprise was so meagre, and the sums contributed so insignificant, that after waiting a reasonable time, Mr. Hazelton refunded all the money received and decided to take the matter entirely into his own hands. This necessitated a curtailment of the work as at first proposed, and will sufficiently account for the fragmentary form in which much of it appears.

With the means at his disposal, the compiler has made every effort to enlarge the scope of the work and to render it as complete as possible. At the best, he feels that it is only material for a genealogy of the Hazelton family, placed in form to be preserved for the use of some future compiler. The list of unclassified families is much too large, for there is not much doubt that most of them, by proper effort, could be traced to and connected with either one or the other of the two principal lines. In the case of Joseph Hazelton who came from New Hampshire and settled in Winthrop, Me., there is scarcely a doubt that he was a descendant of the immigrant Robert. Solomon of Swansea, N. H., was probably an offshoot of one of the two principal families, notwithstanding the statement of some of his descendants, that he came from England. And so with most of the families placed as "unclassified," with the exception of the Rhode Island and Connecticut families, the Salem family and perhaps one or two others who probably have no connection with the Rowley immigrants, a little effort involving some expense would doubtless place them where they belong upon this family tree.

That the work is incomplete is much to be regretted, and by none is it more so than by us, but under the circumstances, it could not be otherwise. To complete it would involve a large expense, and delay its publication, at least, two years. An awakened interest may follow the publication of this work which may result in its completion. This is indeed a consummation greatly to be desired. The apathy shown by many in the success of the work and their neglect to contribute their family records, has been in part redeemed by the deep interest shown by a few. Among the latter should be mentioned first and foremost, Miss Louise, the accomplished daughter of Charles B. Haseltine, Esq., of Belfast, Me., who has been indefatigable in her efforts to have her ancestors brought into line, and which has been successfully accomplished. A few others have shown a praiseworthy interest and are rewarded in having their family records placed beyond the possibility of loss by fire or flood. We are deeply indebted to that eminent antiquary, Mr. Alfred Poor of Salem, Mass., for data of the family collected by him, and of which he gave us the free use. Had we found this material before, it would have saved us no little labor and expense. To Mr. Asa L. Hazelton of Washington, D. C., now hale and vigorous at fourscore and five years, a gentleman of the old school, we are indebted for much information respecting his branch of the family. Hon. George C. Hazelton, the able attorney for the District of Columbia, Hon. Gerry W. Hazelton, ex-member of Congress from the West, and several others have shown a commendable interest in the success of the work and are entitled to the thanks of both compiler and publisher. Mr. John B. Hazelton of Suncook, N. H., who furnished records of several New Hampshire families, should not be overlooked in this connection. His contribution involved no small amount of labor. Several of those bearing the name, but not of the descendants of Robert or John Hazelton of Rowley, have shown much interest in the success of the work, conspicuous among whom is John W. Hazelton of Salem, Mass., who furnished the entire material for the genealogy of his ancestor, Samuel Hazelton of Salem.

The collection of material for this genealogy has been the joint work of compiler and publisher, but the entire editing has been done by the former. The arrangement of the material has been disturbed somewhat by the tardiness of a few in forwarding their family records. Some did not respond until after a portion of the book had been printed, and thus necessitated the use of fractions in the consecutive numbering of persons, but as the object of these numbers is only to designate individuals, the use of fractions or letters does not prevent easy reference, provided no two have the same designation. The material in the unclassified lists, and in the appendix, is arranged about as it came to hand. That relating to Hazelton families gathered from every available source, and with no small amount of research, may enable some, with the use of the blank pages inserted for this purpose, to connect with one or the other of the two principal families, and thus complete their family tree. We certainly hope so.

And finally, it should be stated that no one need expect to find this work free from errors. Works of this character involving so many dates, are never absolutely correct. These errors occur in various ways. Persons copying their family records, quite often make mistakes. Town records are rarely correct in every particular, and again, the compiler makes mistakes in copying, and the compositor in setting the types, which are overlooked by the proof-reader. It is hoped, however, that the errors herein may not be found in excess of those generally found in works of a similar character, and to the charitable consideration and discriminating judgment of those for whom the volume is intended, the same is respectfully submitted by

F. H. HAZELTON.

REMARKS ON HERALDRY.

“Heraldry,” says Burke, “is not of remote origin; the registry of its birth is found among the archives of the holy wars; its cradle was rocked by the soldiers of the Cross, and its maturity attained in those extraordinary times of reality and romance, of barbarism and civilization—more barbarous than civilized—when feudalism, allying with chivalry, was enabled to reburnish its iron crown, and to prolong its herculean despotism even to another age—to hulk, for it could not altogether smother, the breathings of public opinion, at the outburst of which, the whole feudal fabric was predestined like another Jericho, to crumble into ruins. The feudal lord and his frowning fortress, the mailed knight and his gorgeous tournament, have passed away, and heraldry alone survives, the only existing relic of either.”

Heraldry, since its nativity has flourished in every age, in every country and under almost every form of government. In England it has been more than fondly fostered; there a coat of arms has always been the indispensable appendage of a gentleman, and be it inherited or acquired, it is equally an object of pride and display. Heraldry is, however, no more than an organization of the emblems and devices which had previously existed beyond the memory of man; almost coevally with man himself; for nature had hardly imparted her first lesson of self-preservation than instinct had taught the full value and importance of union—the fable and moral of the bundle of sticks. Hence bands, tribes, sects and nations; and hence those insignia so necessary as landmarks by which tribes might be separated, boundaries fixed and friends and foes distinguished and described. Advancing imperceptibly in the train of civilization, these rude devices assumed a systematic form, and at length, at the eventful period to which reference has been made, acquired the designation of heraldry; this in brief, is the origin of the science of arms.

Arms were no sooner esteemed as evidence of honor and blood than their possession was eagerly sought for by all, who, by their own industry, the patronage of the feudal lord, or through royal favor, had obtained landed property, but who had not previously served in a military capacity; hence application to the crown for grants of arms became so constant that the King finding the duties so onerous that he appointed officers to grant ensigns armorial within their respective provinces under the authority of the Earl Marshal. Arms in their first acceptation, were taken up at any gentleman's pleasure, yet that liberty was denied by regal authority and were made the rewards and ensigns of merit, or the gracious favors of princes.

Though elaborated during the crusades, to the French is due the credit of perfecting it and of inventing its technical nomenclature. From the display of arms on garments originated "Coats of Arms." The rules of heraldry differ some in various countries, but the general principles are the same. The offices of heraldry are performed by heralds whose chief duties consist in the blazoning of arms, the presentation of heraldic records and pedigrees and the conducting of public ceremonies. In England heralds are merged in a corporation called the College of Arms or Herald's College which was institated in 1483 by King Richard the Third. At the head of the institution is the Earl Marshal of England, under him are three knights at arms.

It will thus be seen that while the right to armorial bearings was originally limited to those who bore arms either in the crusades against the infidel, or in defence of king or country, it finally came to pass that coats of arms were granted for the performance of any great and noble deed, for any important discovery in science or art and even for the influence imparted by the possession of great wealth. Blazonry is an essential part of the science of arms. To blazon a coat of arms is so to describe it that any person with an ordinary knowledge of heraldry will be able to comprehend, and an artist to sketch it. The terms used are much abbreviated and all tautology must be avoided. After occupying for ages, the attention of the learned and forming an important branch of a princely education, the study of it fell into disrepute, and was abandoned to coach-painters and undertakers, a degradation largely due to the endless tissue of follies and mystifications that had been interwoven therewith. Modern writers have rescued it from the pedantries and follies of the heralds and have imparted to it a new and important interest as a valuable aid to historical and genealogical investigation. And this is really its only value at the present time, and especially in this country where no titles of nobility can either be granted or recognized. Take for instance, the various coats of arms used by the Hazelden or Hazelton families as described hereafter. While no two are precisely alike, yet there are certain emblems either alike or so nearly so, as to indicate a relationship and a common origin.

ORTHOGRAPHY OF THE NAME.

Lower, in his Patronymica Britannica, says that Hazelden was an ancient manor in Dallington, Co., Sussex, and adds: "The name appears to have been corrupted to Haseldine, Haseltine, Hazeldine and Hesseltine." This is doubtless correct and Hazelden the original orthography. The etymology of the word also comes to our aid, for Hazelden is composed of the words hazel, a shrub or tree, and den means a valley, and taken together, "hazel valley" or "the valley where hazels grow," while the various corruptions given above, and multiplied still more in this country, appear to have no meaning or significance at all. In the records of the various families in this country, which have come into my hands, the following variations appear: "Hassaltine," "Hazzaltine," "Hezeltine," "Heseltine," "Hesseltine," "Hazeltine," "Hazleton," "Heselton," and "Hesselton," but in no case the original name, Hazelden. In one instance I have found the name Hazelhurst, a separate family and having the same etymology as Hazelwood. "Hazelrigg," the name of a prominent English family elevated to the peerage, has a similar etymology, it being Hazelbridge. In compiling and arranging these records, it would have obviously been improper for me to have given to each branch its own orthography, and for the sake of uniformity it became necessary for me to select some one of the various spellings and carry it through the work. The original name of Hazelden would have seemed to me the most appropriate, but as no American family had adopted this method of spelling it, I thought it best to adopt the spelling which in sound and etymology came the nearest to the original method, and this was Hazelton. The transition from Hazelden to Hazelton is quite easy and natural, and this was probably the first change made in the method of spelling the name. Although neither of the immigrants or any of their immediate progeny, adopted this method of writing the name, many in both lines have since adopted it, and it has an increasing popularity. The termination ton may mean a hill, a town or enclosed place, and the entire word may mean "hazel hill," "hazel town," or almost any place where hazel trees abound. It is hoped that this selection may not offend those who practice a different orthography, since it is obvious that all could not be gratified.

EXPLANATIONS.

The arrangement of families in this volume, so that one can trace his lineage either backward or forward, is quite simple when once understood. The Roman numerals opposite a name indicate the position in the family with regard to date of birth. The figures opposite names indicate the position in the genealogy, and are consecutive numberings. Whenever a person is referred to, it is by his or her number. The number of a person in small figures standing against his name in the genealogical arrangement, appears above his name in full-faced figures, when he comes to have a family record of his own. The raised or superior figures placed at the right of a Christian name, shows the generation to which such person belongs, reckoning from his immigrant ancestor who is always called of the first generation, and in each case where the head of a family is named, his line enclosed in parenthesis, is traced back to the immigrant. Only a few abbreviations are used: b. stands for born and d. for died; sometimes dau. is used for daughter.

HAZELTON GENEALOGY.

DESCENDANTS OF ROBERT HAZELTON.

In the year sixteen hundred thirty-seven, there landed at Salem in the Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England, the Rev. Ezekiel Rogers and about sixty families who had come from the counties of Yorkshire and Devonshire in old England, for the purpose of planting a colony in the wilds of the new world. The company embraced all the artisans and trades necessary to establish a first-class, self-reliant and self-sustaining community and included smiths of various kinds, weavers, carpenters, farmers and herdsmen. They were members of the church and their leader, Rev. Ezekiel Rogers who had been their pastor in the old country, was to sustain the same relation in the new. After remaining in Salem as a rallying point for about a month, they pitched upon territory now the town of Rowley in the 'county of Essex as the place of settlement. They began a clearing near the sea where the village of Rowley now stands, and very soon a mill was erected, the weavers commenced their labors and here and by them, was manufactured the first cloth made in New England. They called the settlement Rogers' Plantation, but a year later they changed the name to Rowley, this being the name of the old town in Yorkshire from which some of the company had come.

The territory taken up by the Rogers company included the present towns of Rowley, Georgetown, Boxford and Bradford. Mr. Rogers was a man of substance and character, a non-conformist who had left his native land and settled in the wilds of New England where he hoped to enjoy religious freedom which had been denied him at his old home. He was somewhat advanced in years and twelve years after his arrival, twelve years of unceasing labor, he died. Under his fostering care, the colony grew and thrived, and after he had passed to the silent land, the impulse which he had given it caused it to increase and prosper until it came to be one of the largest and thriftiest plantations in the Province.

In Mr. Rogers' company were two men bearing the names of Robert and John Hazelton. The early records have the orthography of Heselton, but it has undergone many changes, and has since been variously written, Haseltine, Hazeltine, Has-saltine, Hazelton, etc. In the old country the name was originally Hazelden, from hazel a tree or shrub, and den a valley; the hazel valley, or the valley where the hazels grow. In Yorkshire and also in Devonshire where the name is quite common, it has been corrupted much the same as here. Robert and John Hazelton were brothers and are said to have been herdsmen, but they were probably farmers, keeping stock being a part of their business as it has been with New England farmers ever since. Their record has come down to us as hardy, vigorous, thrifty and upright men and valuable members of the colony. They took the free-man's oath, May thirteen, sixteen hundred and forty, thus becoming freemen and citizens on the same day.

In the year sixteen hundred and forty-nine, memorable to the colony for the death of their beloved pastor and to the English speaking world for the execution of Charles the First, the colony at Rowley desired to extend their borders to the Merrimack river. There were natural meadows in the vicinity which furnished excellent pasturage for their increasing herds, but it required settlers near them to look after them, and protect them from wild beasts and Indians. In consideration of certain grants of land in the new territory, Robert and John Hazelton and William Wilde commenced clearings and erected dwellings upon lands bordering on the Merrimack river, and were the first settlers in the present town of Bradford. They were also the pioneers in the movement for an expansion of the improved lands of Rowley toward the west. In consideration of these grants, the Hazeltons and Wilde were to look after the cattle belonging to the settlers while grazing upon the natural meadows already referred to, and this fact doubtless gave rise to the tradition that has been handed down concerning these men that they were herdsmen by occupation. The first home of the Hazeltons in Bradford was on the westerly slope of the pleasant grove which stands now as then, near the site of the old town-house where the soil was rich and mellow and where the birds chanted their earliest spring notes. Here they built their first house, but a few years after, they erected more substantial homes on what is called Indian Hill, where they also built the first meeting house, the minister's house and laid out a burying place. They owned large tracts of land including that upon which the village and academy now are, and here they lived, multiplied and prospered and in the town of Bradford some of their posterity still live. The descendants of these two men are very numerous and widely scattered. They early followed the march of civilization into New Hampshire, Maine and Vermont, crossed over Lake Champlain into New York, and as the course of empire made its way westward, they settled in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin, and to-day persons of this descent may be found in almost every state and territory of the west, southwest, and northwest. Their enterprise is shown in the fact that a dozen towns in as many states bear the name, and numerous post-offices, hamlets and villages, are called Hazelton.

It is believed that nearly all the persons bearing the name of Hazelton with its varied orthography in this country, are descendants of Robert or John of Rowley and Bradford, but it is known that there have been one or more recent immigrations from the old country. Solomon Hasaltine who lived in Swansea, N. H., and who was a soldier in the war for independence, is said to have been born in England. He served out several terms of enlistment and was a pensioner. He has descendants one of whom is the noted steam-boiler manufacturer of Chicago.

John Hazelton, brother of Robert, after a few years at Bradford, crossed the Merrimack and lived and died in Haverhill. His place in Bradford, which included the westerly half of the village, became the property of his son Samuel who continued to reside upon it until he died. Robert Hazelton and William Wilde settled near John, and the meadow land which the brothers jointly owned is known as "Hasseltine's Meadow" to this day. The place where they settled was first called Merrimack, and was subsequently changed to Bradford, after a town in the old country from which some of the early settlers came. At the first meeting of Merrimack people in 1668, Robert Heseltine was chosen one of the selectmen.

Robert Hazelton is supposed to have been the elder, though there is no positive evidence that such was the fact. We know not the birth day or year of either, but in all conveyances which required joint action, the name of Robert always appeared first. In those early times respect to age was much more marked than it is now, and the fact that Robert was always given precedence in the matter of signing deeds and other documents, is almost conclusive that he was the elder brother. The marriage of Robert and Ann Hazelton (we have not her family name) was solemnized in Rowley October twenty-third, sixteen hundred thirty-nine, and the first in the plantation or town. The wife died in Bradford July twenty-sixth, sixteen hundred eighty-four. He made his will October 25, 1673, and it was proved September 29, 1674. He died August 27, 1674. He was the first to establish a ferry between Bradford and Haverhill.*

The children of Robert and Ann Hazelton, born in Rowley and Bradford, were as follows:

NANCY⁶ HAZELTON (John⁵, John⁴, Richard³, Abraham², Robert¹) changed her Christian name to Ann and became the wife of Rev. Adoniram Judson. Her conversion to Christianity took place when she was not far from seventeen years of age. The interest which she exhibited for religious reading of the most elevated character was remarkable in a person comparatively so young. She became a member of the Congregational church in Bradford Sept. 14, 1806. With a desire to be useful and to secure the means of an independent support, she engaged for several years, at intervals, in teaching. At the meeting of the Massachusetts Congregational Association in June, 1810, Mr. Judson met his future wife. His persuasive words induced her to consent to share the fortunes of his missionary life, as well as to be the first American woman who "resolved to leave her friends and country to bear the gospel to the heathen in foreign climes." She was married to Mr. Judson February 5, 1812. On the outward voyage to Calcutta she changed—as did her husband—her views on the mode and subjects of baptism, and was baptized with her husband by Rev. Mr. Ward. The missionary life of Mrs. Judson is so intertwined with that of Dr. Judson that the record of the latter contains all that needs to be said in that of the former. With the same fidelity and patience which characterized her husband, she applied herself to learning the language, and at the close of 1815 she states that she can both read and write it with a good degree of ease. She was the efficient helper of Dr. Judson for several years, when she was compelled by her failing health to return to her native land. On the 21st of August, 1821, she embarked for Bengal, and on reaching Calcutta took passage for England. The kindest attention was shown to her both in England and Scotland. She embarked on board the ship “Amity” at Liverpool, August 16, 1822, and arrived at New York the 25th of the September following, and after a brief visit in Philadelphia, she hastened to her old home in Bradford. The severity of a northern climate to one who had lived so many years in the East was more than her enfeebled constitution could endure, and she was forced to make her winter home in Baltimore with her brother-in-law, Dr. Elnathan

Judson. Here she rapidly improved in health, and was able to write an interesting account of the Burman mission. A few weeks of the following spring she spent among Christian friends in Washington, and then returned to Massachusetts. On the 21st of June, 1823, she embarked on her return voyage to Calcutta, having as her companions Rev. Jonathan Wade and his wife, and arrived at Rangoon on the 5th of the following December.

The narrative of the fortunes of Doctor and Mrs. Judson in Ava, to which city they proceeded soon after the arrival of the latter in Rangoon, is told in history and need not be repeated here. The pitiful story of the dreadful sufferings of their first convert, Oung-pen-la, reads almost like a romance. The noble, heroic character of this most gifted woman has touched the sensibilities of thousands of Christian hearts, and the memorial of all that she did and endured for her husband will not soon be forgotten. When the anxiety and the intense and prolonged excitement connected with eighteen months of bitter trial had passed away, there came the natural reaction, and when the disease which forced her to return to her native land assumed a more violent type her weakened physical system was unable to endure the attack, and she yielded to its force. Early in the month of October, 1826, she was stricken with the fever which finally proved fatal, and died the 24th. The sad event was followed in a few months by the death of "little Maria," and together they were buried under the "Hopia" tree at Amherst. She was one of the noblest women that ever bore the Christian name. Her hallowed fame will be handed down with reverence to the last generation of Christ's followers on earth.

GERRY WHITING⁷ HAZELTON (William⁶, John⁵, Ephraim⁴, Richard³, Abraham², Robert¹) born at Chester, N. H., is the son of William Hazelton and Mercy J. (Cochrane) Hazelton.

After a course of study in the common school he entered Pinkerton Academy at Derry, N. H., and was also a pupil for some time of Mr. Crosby, for many years a distinguished teacher at Nashua.

Sincerely Yours
Gerrit W. Hazleton

In 1848 he went to Amsterdam, N. Y., where he began the study of law with his kinsman, the late Hon. Clark D. Cochrane, at the same time continuing a classical course with a private tutor. Admitted to the bar in 1852, he shortly after formed a partnership with Judge Heath, which continued till 1856, at which time he removed to Columbus, Wisconsin.

In 1860 he was elected to the state senate and served as a member of the Judiciary Committee and chairman of the Committee on Benevolent Institutions. Was elected president pro tem of the senate and re-elected to the same office at the extra session following the death of Governor Harvey. At the second session he was made chairman of the Committee on Federal Relations and again elected to the position of president pro tem of the senate. He was also appointed chairman of several important special committees. Declining to be a candidate for re-election, he resumed the practice of his profession, and was in 1864, elected prosecuting attorney for Columbia county. During his term of office he was appointed collector of internal revenue, and held the position until removed by President Johnson on account of political differences.

In 1869 he was appointed by President Grant United States Attorney for the District of Wisconsin, then embracing the entire state, and acted in that capacity till January, 1871, at which time he filed his resignation, having been nominated and elected to the forty-second Congress during the preceding fall.

In the apportionment following the census of 1870 the county of Rock was taken from his district and the county of Sank added, but he was nominated by acclamation for a second term, and re-elected by a large majority.

In the forty-second Congress he served on the Committees on Privileges and Elections and Expenditures in the Navy. In the forty-third Congress he was again appointed on Privileges and Elections and as second member of a new committee, that of War Claims. He was also designated by Speaker Blaine as one of the Regents of the Smithsonian Institute with Judge Rockwood Hoar of Massachusetts, and S. S. Cox of New York.

At the end of his second term, having declined to be a candidate for re-election, he resolved to return at once to the practice of his profession. About this time he was tendered the position of United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Wisconsin. The offer was unsolicited and unexpected, but was accepted, and in August, 1875, he entered upon the duties of the office, in which he continued for nearly ten years.

"The Bench and Bar of Wisconsin" published a few years since concludes a notice of him in the following words:

"Mr. Hazelton ranks among the ablest of lawyers in a city where ability among the fraternity is by no means the exception. Eminently successful, he brings to the consideration of every case extensive learning, sound common sense, and unwearied industry. These make him a safe and wise counselor, and coupled with great powers of analysis and a most persuasive eloquence, enable him to command from courts and juries that respectful attention, and to exercise over their deliberations that influence, which are the reward of a thorough training in and adaption for his profession. During his entire residence in Wisconsin, Mr. Hazelton has been identified with public interests and has responded to various calls from all parts of his state for addresses and lectures. As a speaker he is easy, eloquent and effective, and has the happy faculty of impressing his auditors with the thoughts that inspire his own mind, and is justly esteemed by all who know him as an upright and honorable citizen."

For several years Mr. Hazelton has been a member of the Board of Trustees of Downer College. He has also served for several terms on the Board of Trustees of Immanuel Presbyterian Church, for most of the time as president of the board.

He has had the honor of taking a prominent part in many of the public demonstrations and ceremonials of the city since he became a resident of Milwaukee. At the laying of the corner-stone of the great exposition building in which not only the city but the state took an active interest, he was chosen to deliver the address on behalf of the directors. He was also selected as orator on the occasion of unveiling the statue of Washington, and at the memorial exercises following the death of President Garfield. In no public observance, however, has he taken deeper interest than in the centenary celebration held in April, 1889. The occasion was one which could not fail to excite a general and deep interest and to call out a large and representative audience. The preparation for that occasion prompted an article, subsequently published in the Magazine of American History for January, 1890, entitled "Federal and Anti-Federal." Since his retirement from the office of United States attorney in 1885, he has been engaged in the practice of his profession, but has found time since as before to return to his native town nearly every summer, and to visit the old homestead where his father, grandfather and great-grandfather were born, where his earlier days were passed, and near which many of his kindred still live.

He married May 22, 1855, Martha Louise Squire of Amsterdam, N. Y., daughter of Jessy and Delia (Lester) Squire, and they have one daughter.

Child :

Anna^s, b. Columbus, Wis., July 8, 1858.

GEORGE COCHRANE⁷ HAZELTON (William⁶, John⁵, Ephraim⁴, Richard³, Abraham², Robert¹,) was born in Chester, Rockingham county, N. H., January 3, 1833. His mother was Mercy J. Cochrane, whose descent was from an old and noted Scotch family. She was the sister of the Hon. Clark B. Cochrane, one of the leading lawyers of New York, located at Albany, and a noted politician in that state, having represented his district in Congress two terms, ending with the inauguration of Mr. Lincoln. She was the sister also of Robert Boyd Cochrane, who lived and died in New Boston, N. H., near by the place where the Cochrane family was born. He was a self made man and in his day and generation possessed a large influence among his people, being a well known civil engineer, a State senator and a member of the Governor's Council for a number of years.

William Hazelton, the father of the subject of this sketch, had two brothers, John and Samuel, who died some years since in extreme old age having reared large families of boys and girls, some of whom still survive and dwell on and near by the old farm at Walnut Hill where they were born. His three sisters are long since dead, except Ruth who is now living at Derry, N. H., but very old.

These three brothers John, Samuel and William, belonged to the old Whig party, until it ceased to exist as a national organization. They were followers and admirers of Henry Clay, were readers of the New York Tribune, in the days of Greeley, were strong in their convictions against human slavery, and naturally and logically became Republicans when that party was organized.

In the light of the present age of rapid transit, it would seem strange that neither one of these three brothers. living up to an average advanced age, of more than three quarters of a century, ever went farther from home than to Boston, Mass., a distance of 40 miles, except that John went a few times on business ventures in the winter season to Montreal, Canada.

The old homestead at Walnut Hill, the ancestral seat of this branch of the Hazelton family for many generations, and which passed into the possession of William Hazelton upon the death of his parents, is located in a charming and picturesque region of the Granite State.

Sheltered behind the row of forest trees, which were planted by the hands of the subject of this sketch in his early boyhood, and which are now grown to strength and beauty, stands the homestead dwelling fashioned as of old with frame work huge and strong, commodious rooms and ponderous chimney; but upon its hearthstones, well worn by time and use, the old family fires have gone out forever, and new ones were lighted by strangers who purchased it upon the death of the veteran owner in 1864.

Of the six children of William and Mercy J. Hazelton, born and reared on this old homestead, Sophia A., the eldest, died at the age of 28 years. She was for many years a successful teacher in the state and in New York, and is still remembered as a woman of fine intellectual acquirements, of great pride of character and ever ambitious for the education and success of her brothers, and deserves a prominent place in this statement of family history.

The other children are still living, but widely scattered. William, the oldest brother, lives at Albert Lea, Minn. Harriet T., in Wisconsin, the Hon. Gerry W. Hazelton, at Milwaukee, Wis.. Major John F. Hazelton, at Canajoharie, N. Y., and George C., at Washington.

George C., the subject of this sketch, at the age of 16, after attending district school, entered Pinkerton Academy, at Derry, N. H., and afterwards, having finished his preparation for college at Dummer Academy, near Newburyport, Mass., under the instruction of Marshall Henshaw, subsequently distinguished as a professor of Rutgers College in New Jersey, entered the Sophomore class of Union College, at Schenectady, N. Y., when that institution was under the presidency of the venerable and celebrated Dr. Nott. He graduated in the class of 1858, and was admitted to the bar of New York, in the same year.

One of the curious incidents of political life in our country, is to be found in the fact that Mr.

Hazelton and Judge James, one of the four Supreme Court judges before whom he appeared for examination for admission to the bar, eighteen years later, served together as members of the 47th Congress.

Upon his admission to the bar he practiced his profession in Schenectady and in Amsterdam, N. Y., until the autumn of 1863, when he decided to try his fortunes in the West. He first visited Minneapolis, then in its infancy, with full intention of locating there, but was induced to change his purpose and locate in Wisconsin, in order to be nearer his brothers, William and Gerry, who were then citizens of that state.

In November, 1863, he was married to Miss Ellen Van Antwerp of Schenectady, New York, a woman of rare gracefulness, worth, and beauty, who was born at Mobile, Alabama, September 19, 1845. Four children have blessed this union: Henry Maurice, the eldest, was born January 17, 1866, and died October 4, 1867; Alice, born July 22, 1873, who died July 8, 1875.

The other children, George C. Hazelton, Jr. and John Hampden Hazelton, are still living. The former, having acquired a liberal education at Greylock Institute, Massachusetts, and the Columbian University, D. C., was engaged first as an actor with the Edwin Booth and Lawrence Barrett Combination, and since the death of Mr. Barrett in the spring of 1891, has been with Madame Modjeska, and is still under engagement with her. He was born in Wisconsin January 20, 1868.

John Hampden Hazelton, having graduated from the Washington High School, is now a student in Johns Hopkins University in the classical course, and will graduate from that institution with the class of 1893. He intends to adopt the profession of law as his life business. He was born in Wisconsin June 11, 1871.

Mr. Hazelton has had a distinguished career both at the bar and in state and national politics. From the date of his settlement in the West he made rapid progress in his profession, and when first elected to Congress in 1876, his practice had become lucrative and extensive, not only in Wisconsin, but in adjoining states, not only in the state courts, but in the circuit and district courts of the United States, and while in Congress, he did not abandon the practice of his profession, but during that period, was still occasionally engaged in the conduct of important trials in these courts.

He was prosecuting attorney for Grant county for four years, and in that time conducted with success some of the most important criminal prosecutions on the part of the state known to its judicial history.

For two terms he was a member of the State Senate of Wisconsin, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, and president pro tempore of that body, and during his service as senator, was prominently identified with many measures of legislation, of lasting importance to the state.

His career in Congress commenced with the Forty-fifth Congress, when President Hayes was inaugurated, and closed with the Forty-seventh, embracing a service of six years in that distinguished forum of national legislation. Here he met and was associated with as co-law makers of the republic, such men as Blackburn and Carlisle of Kentucky, Mills and Regan of Texas, McLain of Maryland, Fernando Wood and S. S. Cox of New York, and Speaker Randall of Pennsylvania, leaders on the Democratic side of the House, and such distinguished Republicans as Frye, Hale and Reed of Maine, Garfield, McKinley and Butterworth of Ohio, Levi P. Morton of New York, now Vice-President, Robinson and General Butler of Massachusetts, ex-Secretary Robeson of New Jersey and Burrows of Michigan. At the other end of the capitol Sherman, Conkling, Edmunds, Thurman, Carpenter, Howe, Hamlin, David Davis and Blaine, were in their zenith as law makers of the Senate.

Among the leading speeches delivered by Mr. Hazelton during his congressional career and which attracted wide attention in the country were that on the Powers of Government and that on the subject of National Banks and Their Relation to the Resumption of Specie Payment. He also, while a member of the Committee on Private Land Claims, formulated the report favoring the adjudication of the titles to Mexican Land Grants in Colorado, and the territories of Mexico and Arizona, upon which report and the suggestions and information therein contained, Congress has since, by law, authorized the organization of a Land Court for this purpose.

Aside from the faithful execution of his duties in Congress, he participated as a public speaker in the national campaigns and was especially complimented by the press and the Republicans of California for his canvass of that state in the fall preceding the opening of the in-coming presidential campaign of 1880.

Among his many speeches, lectures, and orations, delivered at various times and upon important occasions, his oration delivered at the Arlington

National Cemetery, at the annual memorial exercises of 1880, deserves the highest commendation.

Upon the completion of his congressional service Mr. Hazelton entered upon the practice of his profession in the city of Washington, purchasing a home there, in which he now resides, but still continues to revisit the state which has honored him as its representative and to participate as a Republican speaker in its recurring state and national campaigns.

He is now the attorney of the District of Columbia, having been appointed to that office by the present administration when it came into power, an office of high legal rank and of great responsibility, the duties of which by the aid of a corps of assistants, he is discharging with distinguished ability.

JOHN FRANK⁷ HAZELTON (William⁶, John⁵, Ephraim⁴, Richard³, Abraham², Robert¹) is a lawyer at Canajoharie, New York. He prepared for college at Dummer Academy, Byfield, Mass., and completed his education at Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., in 1859. He commenced the study of law soon after in the office of his brother, Gerry W. Hazelton, at Columbus, Wisconsin: was admitted to the bar in Madison in 1861, and commenced the practice of law with his said brother without delay. In August, 1862, he recruited a company of volunteers called "The Columbus Guards." Before leaving Columbus, the ladies of that beautiful village made him a present of a sword and sash which he still treasures among the pleasant recollections of his life. His company was assigned to the 23d Regiment, Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry as Company G, and was mustered into service August 30, 1862. The regiment proceeded by rail to Cincinnati and was there assigned to the 13th Army Corps, commanded by Gen. Wright. It afterwards marched to Louisville, Ky., and November 19th took steamers for Memphis, Tenn. It first met the enemy at Chickasaw Bayou, and next at Arkansas Post. On the 2d of February, 1863, Gen. Grant was put in command, and the 23d Regiment was encamped at Young's Point and Milliken's Bend. Here the mortality of the regiment was fearful, averaging about three a day. April 14th it moved with Grant's forces to the rear of Vicksburg, taking part in the battles of Port Gibson, Champion's Hill, Black River Bridge, also the siege and capture of Vicksburg. At this time his health failed and he was taken to the hospital at Milliken's

Bend by order of the regimental physician. Realizing that he could not recover in that climate, but anxious to remain in the service, he applied for and obtained an appointment as captain and assistant quarter-master of volunteers from President Lincoln, and after a brief rest was assigned to the 2d Brigade, 3d Division, 6th Corps, commanded by Brigadier General J. Warren Keifer, where he remained on duty one year, when he was promoted to the rank of major and placed on the staff of Major-Gen'l George W. Getty, commanding the 2d Division of the 6th Corps, where he continued until after the surrender of General Lee to General Grant in April, 1865, which practically closed the war. He was soon after ordered to proceed to Fort Larned, Kansas, and to relieve the quarter-master at that post he started in August and proceeded by rail as far as Topeka, Kansas, which was the end of railroad travel at that time. The journey was then resumed by ambulance and two days later he reached the Fort. He continued on duty there until November 1865, when he was honorably discharged. In May, 1866, he resumed the practice of law in Albany, N. Y., and remained there two years when he was appointed Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue for Schoharie county. He then moved to Esperance, Schoharie county, and discharged the duties of the office ten years.

In 1878 he was appointed United States Consul to Genoa, Italy, which he accepted. In this historic city he resided with Mrs. Hazelton and our son Henry five years. There is much in the city of Genoa to make the duties of United States Consul very pleasant. The people are hospitable and generous. The large number of Americans who travel in Europe seldom pass it by. The United States fleet in the Mediterranean often leaves one or more of its vessels anchored in the harbor, at which time the Consul is invited to go on board, where he is treated with consideration, and on his return to the shore is saluted by several guns from the vessel. At the end of five years in Genoa, he was appointed United States Consul to Hamilton, Canada, and took charge of that consulate in 1883, remaining there until October, 1885, when he was suspended for offensive partizanship. He has since resided with Mrs. Hazelton in Canajoharie, Montgomery county, New York, where he resumed his original business as a lawyer.

He was married January 14, 1864, at Esperance, N. Y., by Rev. Anson H. Seely, to Harriet Eloise, daughter of Alfred H. and Delia (Marshall) Isham.

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN HAZELTON.

JOHN¹ HAZELTON, a brother of Robert, has already been spoken of as one of Rev. Ezekiel Rogers' colony at Rowley, and as one of the first three settlers of that part of Rowley afterward incorporated as Bradford. He lived in Bradford quite a number of years, but previous to 1660, he had crossed the Merrimack river and had become a resident of Haverhill, originally called Pentuckett. This town was settled in 1640, by twelve men from Newbury and Ipswich. Two years later there were thirty settlers. The first town meeting was held in 1643. In the autumn of 1648, the first meeting house was built, and in the same year a ferry was established by Robert Hazelton at the place still called "the old ferry way," situated a little east of the foot of Kent Street. This ferry was to connect the two settlements of Bradford and Haverhill and rendered the inhabitants of the two places neighbors. In 1665, John Hazelton gave the people of Bradford one acre of land for a meeting house lot, on condition that the grantees should care for it and keep it properly fenced, but subsequently his son Samuel Hazelton who resided in Bradford, released the people of Bradford from this obligation. John Hazelton married Joan Auter, said to have been of Biddeford, England, and from the family of a Mr. Holman of that place. It has been said that John Hazelton was married before he came from England, but this is doubtful. He was no doubt younger than Robert who was married in Rowley, and whose eldest child was older by five years than the oldest of John. The will of John Hazelton was made Aug. 17, 1689, and proved March 31, 1691, and his widow died July 17, 1698. He died Dec. 23, 1690, aged seventy years.

JOHN⁴ HAZELTON (John³, Samuel², John¹), born in Bradford, was an early resident of Sutton, his name appearing upon the town records as early as 1728. His wife was Jane Wood. He became a large land owner in Sutton and vicinity. On

Aug. 10, 1732, he bought of John Plumley, a right in the adjoining town of Mendon, and on the same day he bought of Samuel Dudley a half right in Mendon lands. Also Aug. 10 1732, John Hazelton bought of Seth Aldrich of Mendon, a lot of land in Sutton. Nov. 1, 1730, John Hazelton bought of John Perham of Sutton, a right in the "Pratt" meadow so called.* In 1735, on petition of John Hazelton and others, a new town was incorporated, made up of parts of Hopkinton, Mendon, Sutton and Uxbridge and John Hazelton became a resident of Upton. In 1762, Mr. Hazelton was a resident of Uxbridge, having leased the iron works there of John Merrill, merchant of Providence, R. I. He gave a bond to fulfill the conditions of the lease signed by his sons Asa and Silas as sureties. The real estate of Asa Hazelton is described as four hundred acres of land in Upton, with two houses, a barn and a smiths' shop standing thereon, situated on the road leading from Grafton to Mendon. The property of Silas Hazelton is described as thirty acres known as the forge lot, one forge with three fires, three dwelling houses, one barn, one coal house, one corn mill,

*Mr. Hazelton also bought land of Elisha Johnson of Sutton Aug. 10, 1732, of Samuel Wood of same, Sept. 6, 1732, of Edward Holman Dec. 22, 1732, and Dec. 8, 1737, he bought of Jabez Ross of Ipswich swamp and meadow lands situated in the town of Upton.

one bottling mill, one scythe mill, bounded easterly by land of Daniel March, and on road leading from the said farm to Worcester, northerly by land of Mr. March, westerly by Mr. Gowings' land, extending to the Blackstone river, then down said river to the land of Nathaniel Gowing.

In 1763, John Hazelton was at Litchfield, Conn. and Aug. 16th, of that year, he and wife Jane deeded to David Wadsworth of Grafton, land in Grafton. Paul Hazelton, son of John Hazelton, moved to Townshend, Vt., and Oct. 9, 1777, the latter conveyed to his son Asa Hazelton of Upton, land in Sutton, it being all the land the grantee owned in Sutton, situated on Blackstone river "bounded by land belonging to the heirs of Silas Hazelton, deceased, and by the homestead where the widow of Silas Hazelton now lives" &c. John Hazelton died intestate at Upton before the close of 1777. Nov. 21, 1777, the following certificate was executed, and was subsequently placed upon record: "Uxbridge Nov. 21, 1777, I, Jane Hazelton, widow of John Hazelton, wholly decline taking it upon me to administer upon the estate of my late husband. I desire my son Paul and Joshua Wood to do that business.

JANE HAZELTON.

Witness—John Hazelton, Richard Wood."

Dr. Joshua Wood brought in a claim against the estate of £1496-5-10. This made trouble and Asa and Peter Hazelton petitioned the court that this demand be disallowed or cut down. Finally, the estate was declared insolvent and commissioners were appointed who adjusted the claims against it. Mr. Hazelton had been an active and energetic business man. His business was varied, but some of his schemes failed to be profitable and, in old age, he was financially embarrassed. When he settled in Sutton the country was new and he became a very extensive farmer. For many years he was called in deeds and other official papers, "husbandman" then he was designated "esquire" and later, gentleman. He wrote a plain hand for that day, and often did business for his towns people as a conveyancer. Jane Hazelton died in Townshend, Vt., Feb. 16, 1810, aged one hundred and four years.

His children born part in Sutton and part in Upton but all upon the same farm and probably within the same house, were as follows:

PAUL RICHARDS⁷ HAZELTON (Benjamin⁶, Silas⁵, John⁴, John³, Samuel², John¹) was one of a large family which was of necessity compelled to seek their own fortunes and early in this century Benjamin, the second son of Dr. Benjamin Hazelton, moved to Belfast, Maine. Here he was soon followed by his five brothers all of whom settled in Belfast except Arad and Harry who sought other homes in the same State.

Benjamin was a merchant, and Paul entered his employ, later on himself becoming an independent business man. He proved to be very successful, dealing in many and varied articles according to the fashion of that day. Honest and upright, he exacted from those about him the most scrupulous exactness, and each clerk in his employ was furnished with a code of rules to be strictly observed. Some of these still exist in his own handwriting.

He was a prominent man of affairs generally, and interested himself alike in shipbuilding, the establishment of the first bank, and of the first insurance company. His life, thus passed in the city of his adoption, secured to him ample time for close application to business which finally yielded him merited success. He was also an accomplished sportsman.

On March 17, 1878, he passed away, an old and honored citizen, a man whose life had been always spent among his own people with the exception of a term in the Legislature.

Among other bequests he left $20,000 for the establishment of a public library, an equal amount to the Unitarian cause, for he was an ardent and staunch upholder of this faith, generous gifts to several charitable institutions, and many private donations.

Upon the death of his widow in 1886, the money thus left was appropriated as well as that of the Wilson fund, and a solid and handsome public building was erected for the purpose designated. The library, well-stocked with books, is used alike by rich and poor, and is a constant source of profit and enjoyment.

Mr. Hazelton died leaving no children. His widow was Harriet Williamson, daughter of the late Judge Williamson of Bangor, Me.

He was, in his younger days, in the employ of his uncle, Paul Richards Hazelton, but in later years became a successful grain merchant in California. He retired from a short business career when but a young man, and shortly after his marriage settled in Belfast, Me. His early California life gives him a place in the "Pioneer Society of '49ers" of that state, and ever since his return to his native town he has been most prominently connected in all her business enterprises.

Very Truly Yours,

an artist in oil colors Mrs. Cutter has already obtained more than a local reputation.

Her magic touch and blending of oil colorings are wonderfully true to nature, and many are the oil paintings that decorate the walls of her friends and relatives, as well as her own beautiful home in the city of Westbrook, Maine.

Child :

738 Lizzie Edwards⁹, (Cutter) b. May 12, 1876.

FRANKLIN HERBERT⁸ HAZELTON (Ivory⁷, Ivory⁶, Jonathan⁵, Joshua⁴, Jonathan³, Nathaniel², John¹) was born in the town of Yarmouth, Maine, on the sixth day of May, 1859. Soon after, his parents moved to the village of Saccarappa, Maine, where, in October of the same year, his mother died, after a short illness, of consumption.

M₁. Hazelton acquired his early education in the public schools of Westbrook, subsequently taking a brief course at Westbrook and Kent's Hill seminaries. At the age of eleven he left home to face the world for himself. Obtaining employment in the spinning room of the Westbrook Manufacturing Company, for a year he worked as a "sweeper boy," with wages at sixty cents per day. Promotion to "bobbin boy" followed this, with an increased income of eighty-five cents per day.

Being satisfied that the world held better things in store for him, the young man left the factory, and in 1875 entered the employment of Ex-Representative Charles B. Woodman, as an apprentice in his drug store at Westbrook. At this time his aunt, Reliance Q. Hazelton (Dresser), with a commendable spirit, admitted the young man to her own fireside, where the impressible boy was surrounded with just what he most needed,—the restraining and healthful influences of a home,—a home, he writes, that will ever be looked back to with a heart full of affectionate gratitude.

His first Latin lesson was taken from a printed label on one of the shop bottles,—"Labor omnia Vincit." For nearly a year, besides his arduous duties in the drug store, he conducted in 1880-1, as editor and proprietor, the first subscription newspaper ever issued regularly in Westbrook, by name the "Westbrook Telephone." The paper appeared under the caption of the "Emca Publishing Company," while the type-setting and printing were done in Portland. This periodical was issued semi-monthly in the form of a twenty-eight column folio, and had among its contributors, Hon. F. M. Ray of Westbrook, who, besides writing a number of valuable papers pertaining to the town's history, contributed a serial story of much interest. H. K. Griggs, Esq., of the same town, was another valued contributor.

Although meeting with flattering financial success, its publication was discontinued on the first of July, 1881, to enable him on the 11th of the same month to enter upon the drug business in Bridgton, Me., under the firm name of F. H. Hazelton & Co., his former employer, C. B. Woodman, being the silent partner.

December 7, 1881, Mr. Hazelton married Magdalene Luce, the accomplished daughter of the officiating clergyman. Rev. Israel Luce, at that time the distinguished pastor of Park Street Methodist Episcopal church of Lewiston, Me. The service took place in the Methodist parsonage, the venerable D. B. Randall, D. D., assisting in the marriage ceremony.

Two children are the result of this union; Everett Luce Hazelton, who was born in Bridgton, Maine, May 17, 1887, and Philip Thoburn Hazelton, born in Sioux Falls, S. D., April 19, 1890. Everett took his mother's maiden name, while

Philip, being baptised at Old Orchard, Maine, by Missionary Bishop to India, John M. Thoburn, was christened "Thoburn."

During a most pleasant residence of over six years at Bridgton, all of which time he continued in the drug business, Mr. Hazelton was more or less identified with town interests, serving for three years on the Board of Village Assessors. At this time, also, he became identified in fraternal circles, being enrolled as a member of Cumberland Lodge, No. 30, I. O. O. F., and serving as its presiding officer for two terms. At the same time he became a member of Mt. Pleasant Encampment. Passing through all the chairs of the Subordinate Lodge, he was appointed District Deputy Grand Master by Edwin W. Conant of Penobscot County, and in Aug., 1885, was appointed Grand Herald of the Grand Lodge of Maine. In 1884, he became a member of Oriental Lodge of Masons.

In November, 1887, closing out an unprofitable drug business, Mr. Hazelton accepted a position in the employ of the New York Life Insurance Company. After a prosperous service of fourteen months the company, at his request, transferred him to the promising city of Sioux Falls, South Dakota. At that time the young city was beginning to feel the approach of the "boom" that later on struck it so forcibly, and, real estate becoming more attractive to him than life insurance. Mr. Hazelton tendered his resignation, and for two years devoted himself to the handling of Sioux Falls realty, with a very pleasing degree of success.

While in Sioux Falls Mr. Hazelton was an active member of the First Methodist Episcopal church, and for the greater part of the time, one of its stewards. He helped organize, and was elected the first president of the church's Epworth League, serving in that office until his return East. The Young Men's Christian Association also numbered him among its directors for the years 1889, 1890, and 1891.

He was one of the promoters and directors of the South Dakota Rapid Transit and Railway Company of Sioux Falls, and also connected with the banking interests of the city, being chosen vice-president of one of the local banks in 1890.

In the latter part of May, 1891, he returned East with his family, and on the first day of December of the same year, assumed the management of the Maine business of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of 120 Broadway, New York city, with office and residence in Portland. In Portland, Mr. Hazelton, together with his estimable wife, is a member of the Chestnut Street Methodist Episcopal church. Mr. Hazelton has always identified himself with the Republican party, casting his first ballot for President Garfield ; he is also a member of the Maine State Genealogical Association. Back in the eighties, in the midst of his other duties, he conceived the laudable idea of a genealogy of the family, and although a busy man, yet he has found time to lend a hand in the collection of a part of the material for this volume.

That her maiden name was Lucinda Irene Wardell, born May 25, 1832, daughter of Samuel and Almira (Osgood) Wardell of Wabash and that she was married May 28, 1849.

Mrs. Hazleton farther writes that her husband's father was born June 2, 1781, in the State of New Jersey. He called his name Gervase, but she had seen it in an old Bible written Jarvis. His father's name was Daniel and they went westward in 1792. They stopped first at Cincinnati, then went down the Ohio to the Wabash and up that river to Vincennes, then a military post, with a fort called "Fort Knox." In 1804 they went down to White river, established a ferry and bought considerable land. Daniel Hazleton, the patriot, here died, leaving three children, two boys and one girl. His primary object in going west from New Jersey, was to survey land for Aaron Burr who gave him a bond of 1000 acres for his services.

Gervase or Jarvis was a surveyor of land as well as his father. He married in 1804, Polly Philpot. He had here Daniel and Elizabeth. From here he moved to Wabash county and laid out the town of Palmyra. Gervase, Jr., was born on the Wabash farm, but being a natural machinist, moved to Hazleton. The ferry his father established in 1804, is still known as "Hazleton's Ferry." Gervase Hazleton, Jr., died in August, 1890. He had filled many important positions, superintendent of schools for fifteen years, an earnest advocate of the cause of temperance and prohibition of the liquor traffic. At Hazleton he bought a lumber mill which his widow now operates. He died very suddenly of paralysis of the heart.

David Hazleton, brother of Gervase, Jr., served in the 24th Indiana Volunteers in the late war and died in hospital at Memphis.

Gervase or Jarvis Hazleton, senior, for second wife, married Relief Osgood, January 25, 1817, who died in 1849. He died in 1841.

JOHN HAZELTON, Jr., born in Pennsylvania, February 12, 1795, was a farmer at Shawnee, Ohio, and died there October 2, 1841. He married September 25, 1821, Jane Travis who was born November 17, 1792, and died at Shawnee, August 1, 1877. He died October 2, 1841. He had children, Jane, Henry, John, Mary, Barbary, Sarah and Hannah. It is said in the family that the father of John Hazelton, born in 1756, came from England, but this the compiler doubts. In the lines of that family that we have traced in the preceding pages, there have been several Johns who have disappeared and are not accounted for.

This John may be one of them. There was John⁵ son of Daniel⁴ of Mendon, who was born about this time (1756), was an officer in the war of the Revolution, and this is also said of the John under consideration.

HENRY HAZELTON, son of John, Jr., born October 19, 1824, near Shawnee, Ohio, married May 20, 1860, at Straitsville, Ohio, Lois Amanda Woodruff. They are still living near Shawnee.

John Morton Hazelton, son of Henry and Louis Amanda (Woodruff) Hazelton, was born on a farm near Shawnee, Perry county, Ohio, October 9, 1866. He is the youngest of three children, two sons and one daughter. He graduated from the High School at Shawnee in the spring of 1882.

and the following winter taught a graded school at the same place. Prevented by ill health from pursuing a college course, he spent one year in teaching in a country school, and in the winter of 1887-8 took a course in shorthand and typewriting in Eastman's National Business College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., under the direction of Mr. W. A. Woodworth, to whose kindly interest and encouragement he attributes much of his success in life. He graduated from this institution in March, 1888, and through the influence of Mr. T. E. Phillipps, General Secretary of Poughkeepsie Young Men's Christian Association, was proffered a position as stenographer in the office of Mr. Geo. S. Fisher, State Secretary of Young Men's Christian Associations of Kansas. He remained in this position for a few months, until failing health compelled him to resign. September 1, 1888, he accepted the position of Assistant State Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Associations of Nebraska, where he was associated with Mr. Augustus Nash, one of the most popular and efficient Association workers in the West. In May, 1890, he was called to the position of Acting General Secretary of the Omaha Association, which he resigned September 1, 1891, to accept the position of Treasurer of the Star Loan and Trust Company, which position he now holds. In May, 1891, in conjunction with Mr. Raymond P. May, he started an inter-denominational young people's weekly, the Young Men's Journal. In February of the following year retired from the active work of the Star Loan and Trust Company in order to devote his time largely to the interests of the paper, of which he is editor, and which has in the first year and a half of its existence reached a circulation of 5,000 copies. He is very popular among the young people of the Western states, and is prominently identified with their work. As Treasurer of the State Executive Committee Nebraska Young Men's Christian Associations he keeps in touch with this movement to which, prior to his engaging in business, several years of his life were devoted.

After living two years in that state in the vicinity of Honey Lake, they moved to Oregon—first to Salem, then French Prairie, finally locating on a heavily timbered piece of land near Wilhoit's Mineral Springs in Clackamas county. Here the father and his four boys, Apollos, Randolph, Rudolph, and "Dell," as the family abbreviated his name, Adelbert, labored early and late for fourteen years, clearing up the farm and running a saw and shingle mill, Adelbert teaching the district school in the summer and assisting in the mill in the winter. In 1882 he went to Lincoln county, in the then territory of Washington, locating on a piece of prairie land in the "Big Bend" of the Columbia river. In 1884 he was nominated on the Republican ticket for Probate Judge of that county. During the first five or six years of his residence here his occupations were various—being alternately farmer, teacher, contractor, land agent, merchant, student, and postmaster, being the founder of the little town of Hesseltine. He was one of the first settlers in the town of Wilbur, and was the first police judge of that place, and afterwards town attorney. AUTOBIOGRAPHY.

I cannot go further back than my grandfather. I think he was an orphan boy, and lived in Swansea, New Hampshire. He enlisted in the army at the beginning of the Revolutionary War and served until it was finished. He came out as sergeant. Soon after the war he went to Franklin, Delaware County, N. Y., and settled on a farm on Handsome Brook, three miles from Franklin village. He was soon elected sheriff of that county. He remained there ten years. His children were all born there except one. At the end of ten years, he, with two others, Mr. Clark and one of the name of Gideon Turner, concluded to go to Canada and deal in pine timber lands. They built them a scow at the head of Seneca lake, at a place called now Watkins. On the completion of the scow the three families put their teams and all the necessary tools for going into the woods aboard, and went down the Seneca lake to Geneva. This was over one hundred years ago.

When they arrived at Geneva, they went into the Seneca river the outlet of Seneca lake, which river enters into Lake Ontario at Port Ontario. They did not know there was a Seneca Falls; but an Indian chief saw them just before they reached the falls, and stopped them in time to save their lives. They pulled their scow out of the river, made a bee, and with oxen hauled the scow around the falls. Below the falls they relaunched her and went on down the river. When they got to Port Ontario they found themselves in the open lake. This was a great surprise to them, as they expected the Duck Islands were near shore and they would be safe in pulling around to Sackett's Harbor and Kingston, Canada. They took their chances and arrived there safely. They went up the bay Quinte to Belleville, at the mouth of the Moira river. There they settled and bought land in the woods. Wild animals were numerous, wolves, bears, panthers and wolverines. They cleared up their land and raised a crop of rye. At the end of the first season they put their rye on the scow and went to Nappanee mills, forty miles down the bay to get it ground. This was repeated for several years. My father grew up on that farm; he dug a hole in the top of an oak stump and pounded corn into meal with a pounder; he wore buckskin breeches.

My grandfather after being there for a few years received a commission from the Governor as a magistrate or judge. He told the Governor he was not a British subject and could not take the oath of allegiance to Great Britain. The Governor repeated the request and asked him to take the oath of office alone, and fill the office, which he did. Soon after that our government passed a law giving the Revolutionary soldiers a pension. My grandfather wrote to the Secretary of War at Washington, and told him the position he occupied in Canada. The Secretary wrote him, congratulating him on his refusal to take the oath of allegiance, and told him to go to Sackett's Harbor yearly and get his pension, and hang on to his British judgeship. This he did until he died at the age of eighty-three.

My father, being the only son, took the farm, and died on the same farm in 1876. He lived the life of an ordinary farmer; perfectly satisfied if he had pigs, butter and sheep enough for his family. I was born on that farm in the year 1826.

It took me until I was nearly forty years of age to find out that I was a natural inventor. I then took out my first patent. Since that time I have taken out about sixteen patents, and have received for the whole over a quarter of million dollars. I was really the first inventor of the iron clad Monitor. At the time Sebastopol fell I made my model. I took it to a machinist to get the plates put on, who told me the weight of the plates would sink the ship. This I believed, and quit. Mr. Ericson, six years later, made the first Monitor. I then called on Judge Nelson, of Coopers-town, N. Y., and told him my story. He told me that I was entitled to a priority, as I was an American and Ericson a foreigner.

I married my wife in New York state, forty-one years ago. Her name was Lydia A. White. The minister who married us told her to put up twenty-five cents a day, and he would come to our golden wedding, and she would have $36,000. I had $20.00 in my pocket at that date. My wife has never missed a day in saving this twenty-five cents for forty-one years, and has kept the same at interest, compounded, which sum amounts to-day to $19,000. My oldest daughter's name is Elizabeth Gibson: she is the wife of a prominent lawyer in Waverly, Ia. She is forty years of age. She has one daughter named Grace Gibson.

My second daughter, Mrs. Mate White, thirty-two years of age, married about ten years ago; she is a widow, and has one son, Hazelton White, six years of age, both live with us.

I might give you here the names of a few of my patents. Among the most valuable is a device for decomposing water, the gases designed for fuel purposes. I have the first patent on record for this purpose. To-day many cities in the United States are lighted with this water gas.

Another is a boiler known as the Hazelton Tripod Boiler. There are over a million dollars worth of them in use, and never has there been an explosion known with them yet. Another is a device for purifying water, making hard water soft, preparatory to going into the boilers. Also a heater device for heating buildings with exhaust steam. I put the first plant up in the United States for heating buildings with exhaust steam. This was in the American Linen Mills at Fall River, Mass. Another is a device for heating street cars: another, for running engines one to two miles from the boiler, in mountains where boilers and water cannot be taken, and another is a sleeping car.

APPENDIX.

IVORY HAZELTON (688).

By F. M. RAY.*

Ivory Hazelton, the youngest of the seven children of Jonathan and Miriam (Bean) Hazelton, was born in 1804, in Waterborough, in the County of York, Maine; a town which first appears in history under the name of Massabesie Plantation. At the time of his birth and for many years afterwards, the people of his native town were dependent for their little pittance of ready money upon the manufacture and sale of charcoal, for which they found a market in the somewhat remote sea-coast village of Portland. The soil of Waterborough was then, as now, sufficiently sterile, and the one industry of the inhabitants which yielded a profit was kept up by burning in pits, hollowed in the earth and covered with turf, the few stunted trees which were all that Waterborough vouchsafed to their arid plains and rocky hills, of the virgin forest which grew with such luxuriance in the neighboring towns.

After what has been premised, it will be readily inferred that the early years of the subject of this sketch were, at the best, but an unequal contest for the barest necessities of existence, with circumstances in the shaping of which he had no voice.

Where he first resided after bidding what is not likely to have been a tearful farewell to the home of his childhood, I am not informed. When I came to Westbrook more than a quarter of a century ago, he was already numbered among its prosperous and influential citizens. And although, in process of time, I became somewhat intimately acquainted with him, I never heard him allude otherwise than incidentally to the hardships of his early life. From the few words, however, that did escape his lips in my presence concerning this period of his life, it was evident that the trials through which he had passed had left their impress alike upon body and mind, in lines that no amount of subsequent good fortune could efface.

In the first half of the present century he carried on a farm in Westbrook belonging to the late Moses Quimby—now the homestead of Albion M.

Quimby in Saco street. Soon after we hear of him in Gorham where he took a farm "on shares" from the late Almery T. Hamblin. I have heard, but not from himself, that when the first paper mills were built at old Ammoncongion, now Cumberland Mills, (Westbrook), Mr. Hazelton received from Day and Lyon, the then owners, the contract to transport the raw materials from, and the manufactured product to, Portland. At this time the principal part of his worldly possessions consisted of a pair of horses and such vehicles and accoutrements as are supposed to belong to a well equipped team. Later on he also did the hauling for the Westbrook Manufacturing Company, continuing it until about 1866, when he sold his teams to his son Joseph.

From the time of his contract with Day and Lyon may be dated a new epoch in his life. Fortune now seemed to set in his favor: and in a very few years he was able not only to add to the number of horses, but to dwell in his own house and cultivate his own lands. It was about this time, too, that he became connected with the Methodist Episcopal church of Saccarappa, with which, for the remainder of his life, he remained in active and useful membership.

Mr. Hazelton had been denied the privilege of attending school in early life, yet upon the current topics of his time he was generally well informed, and in public gatherings, especially of his church society, his voice was often heard, and never failed to command the closest attention of his hearers. On such occasions he did not weary the patience of his audience with useless repetitions, but came at once to the matter under consideration; and those who knew his lack of early training could but wonder, as they listened, at his readiness in speaking and especially at the unstudied ease with which he always clothed his thoughts with apt and well chosen words.

Careful at all times in the use of his hard earned dollars; he possessed none of those sordid habits into which men so often fall. What though unconsciously, as the concomitant of self-acquired riches, over his money he seemed to exercise a careful and conscientious stewardship, as if it was not his own, but the sacred trust of one to whom he must sometime render a strict and faithful account. And who shall say that from all rich, or even well-to-do, men such an account will not sometime be exacted?

To all objects which commended themselves to his approval he gave wisely, though not lavishly, governing himself in his benefactions by the same rule of prudent foresight which enabled him in the end to leave to each of his surviving children, not affluence, it is true, but more than many would regard as a competency.

It will naturally be regretted by many who knew Mr. Hazelton, and had learned to appreciate his abilities as a man of affairs, that he did not enjoy in his youth some of the advantages of education and culture which are quite too often wasted upon the children of the rich. But I am persuaded, after mature reflection, that men like Mr. Hazelton owe more to their limitations, than the more fortunate ones owe to their opportunities, though the latter be well and faithfully improved; that they are all the better and more useful members of society for the fiery ordeals through which they are called to pass. The influence of a worthy life is sure to be felt, and due credit given it, somewhere and at sometime, in the years of its duration or those that come after.

Ivory Hazelton, it is true, in a somewhat obscure, but by no means humble, sphere, was one of the world's benefactors. All untaught, or rather self-taught, as he was, he could speak to the edification of those who heard him; and in the primary signification of the word, to edify is to build. Mr.

Hazelton's first essays as a builder began with himself; he was the architect of his own fortune. He was the builder of character, and the character was his own, and in the rhythmic phrase of the clearest-sighted of our modern seers, "He builded better than he knew." All the greater honor, therefore, to the builder, because he builded so well.

BENJAMIN F. HAZELTON (534 h.)

The subject of this sketch was born at Machias, Cattaraugus county, N. Y., March 26, 1847, being the fourth son of O. J. Hazelton and wife, of that place. When he was six years of age, his parents moved to a farm near Waterford, Erie county, Pa., where they resided for about nine years, his father keeping a large stock of horses, cattle and sheep, also being engaged in the lumbering business. Here young Hazelton's time was occupied in caring for the stock, and helping his father and older brother about the farm and lumbering. At the age of eight years he was given a team to drive, and hauled lumber from the mills to Erie City, a distance of sixteen miles, making a trip daily during the greater part of the summer.

Shortly after this the oil excitement on Oil Creek broke out, and he went to what was then known as the Buchanan farm, but later as Rouseville, where he was engaged in helping to drill oil wells by horse power. He was present when the famous Rouse well was struck, and when it was burned. It was here that Mr. Rouse lost his life. Young Hazelton remained on Oil Creek, drilling wells and driving team, hauling oil from the wells to Titusville, until the winter of 1861, and 1862, when, though not fifteen years old, and too young to enlist, he joined the army. He was in the battle of Shiloh where his regiment went in eleven hundred strong and came out with less than three hundred men. After this battle he was sent as nurse with hospital boats, to Pittsburgh, Pa., which place he left for his home at Waterford, Pa., and afterward back to Oil Creek.

The summer of 1863, his parents moved to Oconomowoc, Wis., he following, himself, the next winter. The succeeding spring he purchased a meat market in the then village of Oconomowoc, giving only his word for the whole purchase price. In this business he succeeded in paying for his shop and fixtures, and accumulated several hundred dollars, but feeling the need of an education, of which, up to this time he had been deprived, he decided to go to school, and entered a preparatory school at Horicon, Wis., where he remained one year, and then entered the preparatory department of Lawrence University, Appleton, Wis.

He was now seventeen years old, and having no help was obliged to teach district school in winter and keep up his studies with his class, and during the summer vacation he worked in the harvest field. At the age of nineteen he entered the University proper, but from over-work was taken sick with typhoid fever and his physician forbade his going to school again for a year. That spring his mother died, and he remained at home taking charge of the farm while his father made a trip to his old home in the East. That fall he went to Madison, Wis., taking a business course in the Worthington Commercial College. It was here he made the acquaintance of Miss Clarissa Florence Purple, daughter of Assistant State Treasurer C. H. Purple, and the following year, 1869, she became his wife. Although the combined years of the young couple were but thirty-eight, they started out in life to make a success of it, and while they were met by the various disappointments incident to young folks of their years, they overcame every difficulty, and can look back to their small beginning with pride.

At twenty-four years of age Mr. Hazelton had charge of heavy grading and rock work on the Madison Division of the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad, and upon the completion of that division he was given a train, but resigned to accept a position with the lumber firm of J. W. Woodruff & Company, Green Bay. It was here that he first acquired an insight into the business he chose as his own, and in which he has been so successful.

He remained with J. W. Woodruff & Company until the summer of 1878 when he moved to Bradford, accepting a position as foreman at the Bradford Oil Company's mill, on the West Branch, and within a few months he and a brother, A. L. Hazelton, had secured the mill property of said firm, and for several years they enjoyed a large local business. About this time Mr. A. L. Hazelton sold his interest to E. E. Wheeler, and Hazelton & Wheeler were kept busy for the next few years, supplying the demand for rig lumber in the Bradford field. In January, 1884, Mr. Hazelton purchased Mr. Wheeler's interest, and at once set about increasing the business and acquiring better facilities for handling the stock and placing it in the large markets of the North and East. He purchased large blocks of timber, built another mill on the West Branch, was largely interested in and had charge of the construction and management of the West Branch Railroad, until its purchase by the Erie Railroad Company. Each year his business has increased, and he and his lumber are known in most of the markets of the East. He has lately purchased a large amount of timber lands in Elk county, on the Clarion river, where he has built one of the finest mills in the state, a hotel, shops, etc., for operations in that locality. He has platted out the new village of Glen Hazel, and has built the necessary railroad to connect it with the Erie system, and to convey his logs to the mill, and the product to the market. He has in his employ, at the various seasons of the year, from 150 to 300 men, besides contract work, and as his headquarters have always been at Bradford, that city has been largely benefited, his employes all purchasing their supplies of the various merchants in that thriving city. In addition to his mills and yards he has lately purchased the Bradford furniture plant, and has converted it into a planing mill to surface and dress lumber for the various markets. Although these enterprises take up the greater portion of his time, and all require his personal attention, Mr. Hazelton has still found time to do much for the improvement of draught horses in this section of the country. Using many teams, and knowing the value of first-class draught stock where heavy loads are to be moved, together with a natural love for fine horses, led him to make purchase of this class of horses, both in this country and in Scotland.

In 1887 he formed a partnership with Mr. Joseph Garfield of Jamestown, N. Y., for the purpose of importing and breeding stock, and already the stock farm of Garfield & Hazelton is favorably known to all lovers of choice high-bred horses. There, and at Mr. Hazelton's barns in Bradford, may be seen prize winners in the various classes, from the 200 pound Shetland pony to the Clydesdale of a ton weight, one of which, Sir Herbert, has just taken first premium at the New York State Fair.

So much for the business energy displayed by Mr. Hazelton. Socially, he is a gentleman of retiring manners, and, while most of his hours of recreation are enjoyed with his family, he is always willing, by his presence or means, to contribute to the enjoyment of others. He and his wife being both members of the Bradford Methodist church and Sabbath School, and of the latter he being superintendent, not a little of their time is devoted to various interests connected with these organizations.

Their family circle includes a son, Frank, aged 17, now in his last year in the High School, another son, Courteny, aged 12, a little daughter, Bessie, aged 8, and Bennie F., an infant.

Lumbermen being noted for largeheartedness and an appreciation of good things, Mr. Hazelton is no exception to the rule. He is a good liver, a liberal giver, and is well liked by those having business or social intercourse with him. He has always voted the Republican ticket, believes in protection, fair profits, good wages, and better advantages to the wage workers. Were we asked to point an example of what energy, patience, self denial, honesty and strict attention to business could accomplish, we would not have to look beyond the subject of this sketch, who hardly at the prime of life, has already accumulated a very handsome property in McKean and Elk counties.

While not one of the old settlers of the county, he has nevertheless taken a deep interest in its welfare, and has done what he could to develop some of its natural resources.

ASA L. HAZELTON'S STORY (315.)

My great grandfather, John Hazelton, died and was buried at Upton, Mass., about the year 1785. His wife, Jane Wood Hazelton, died and was buried at Townshend, Vt., Feb. 16, 1810, aged 104 years.

My grandfather, Asa Hazelton, married Mary Woodward, and they resided most of their lives at Upton. They died and were buried at Malone, Franklin county, N. Y.

Their children who grew up to manhood were sons : Asa W., Lyman, Simeon and Joseph ; daughters : Mary Elizabeth, Philena, Lucretia, Delcenia, Juda, and Sophia.

Asa W., married a Miss Gray, and Simeon, my father, married Anna Hale, daughter of James Hale of Putney, Vt.

Lyman and Joseph died, leaving no descendants. The daughters, my aunts, married as follows : Mary married a Garfield, Elizabeth a Hosley, Philena, Arba Holbrook, Lucretia, a Dunton, Delcenia, Rufus Earle, Juda, Royal Tyler, and Sophia, a Whitmore.

Of the family of Asa W., I know nothing. After marriage he emigrated to Florida, but later in life, became a resident of Harrisburg, Pa.

When my father was a boy in his teens he had a chum cousin about his own age whose name was John. The two boys agreed with each other that they would change the terminating syllable of their name from "tine" to "ton", thereby making the name Hazelton, instead of Hazeltine. After he became of age my father continued to write the name and was so known, as Hazelton, and all his children so spell the name.

My father, Simeon Hazelton, was born at Upton, Mass., August 24, 1783, and my mother, Anna Hale Hazelton, was born at Putney, Vt., August 18, 1779, and they were married at Putney, June 5, 1806, and immediately went to Sandgate, Vt., to reside. But after the death of grandfather Hale, which occurred May 4, 1808, they returned to Putney and remained at that place until about a year after the death of grandmother Hale, which occurred June 5, 1812. In July, 1813, they had a temporary residence in Gouverneur, St. Lawrence county, N. Y., which continued until the spring of 1816, when they permanently settled in the town of Fowler, St. Lawrence county, N. Y., then a township only, and known as Kilkenny, where they lived, died, and are buried. My mother died April 21, 1856, and my father, August 15, 1877. My father was a prosperous farmer, and had the good will and confidence of his neighbors and acquaintances, was the first town clerk of the town on its organization as such, which I think was in 1817, and often held various offices of trust, in all of which the duties were performed satisfactorily to the parties interested.

On my mother's side, Richard Hale came to this country about the year 1690, and married a Miss Mason. My history of their family is silent, except that they had a son whose name was Walter, and he was born November 16, 1707. He became a noted physician and married Mary Luther who was born January 2, 1706. They had a numerous family, born in the order herein named. Richard, March 29, 1729, then followed Nathaniel, Anna, Nathan, John, Joseph, Amos, James, Lydia, Mary and Elizabeth. James, my grandfather, was born October 30, 1745; his wife Hannah Hicks Hale, May 17, 1740, and they were married November 2, 1768, and took up their residence in the town of Putney, Vt., where they lived, died and are buried. Of their children, Richard, their eldest, was born August 17, 1769, then followed Hezekiah, Mary, Nathan, Anna, John and James.

My grandfather Hale was a farmer, of good standing as a neighbor and citizen, and I believe on more than one occasion represented the town in the Vermont Legislature.

Of my father's family, I am the oldest as will be seen from what is heretofore written, and have been a permanent resident of the city of Washington, D. C., since March, 1853. Have been twice married. My first wife was Serene Fosgate, and we were married at Gouverneur, N. Y., by the Rev. Mr. Hall, Nov. 21, 1853. She was born in Herkimer county, N. Y., Aug. 10, 1821, and died at Washington, D. C., Aug. 31, 1855. My second wife is Diana Cole who was born at Fowler, N. Y., May 7, 1731, and we were married at Fowler by the Rev. Mr. B. B. Berkwick, Jan. 5, 1857. Her parents were Ira Cole and Sarah Kingsley Cole of Fowler. Her grandparents were James Cole and Annah Stilson Cole on her father's side, and on her mother's, Jedediah Kingsley and Mary Cary Kingsley.

Our children are Lillie Serene, born Nov. 13, 1857; Anna Sarah, born Sept. 20, 1859; and Simeon Cole Hazelton, born May 20, 1866. Neither of them are married. Simeon graduated as an Engineer of Mines at the Lehigh University, Pa., in 1886, and is now employed as an analytical chemist by the Mingo Smelting Co., at Sandy, Utah Territory.

As for myself, after I became of age and while living in the town of Fowler, I held at different times the offices of town clerk, supervisor, and justice of the peace, was elected member of assembly for the year 1845 and re-elected for 1846. Here in Washington was a clerk in the loan division of the Register's office from April, 1847, to July, 1849 and from April, 1853, to June 1, 1869, was employed in the third auditor's office of the treasury in the settlement of army officers' accounts, pertaining to the commissary department. Since 1869, have been, and am now, engaged in selling boots and shoes.

When we boys were young, the laws of the State of New York, as well as the laws of the other states, required all able-bodied male citizens between the ages of eighteen and forty-five to do military duty. My brother Galusha M., was not subject to that duty by reason of an injury, resulting from being thrown from a horse, otherwise the rest of us on arriving at the age of eighteen, were required to perform that service. But doing duty under a commission for not less than four years, released the party from further service. It was our good fortune to be early released under that provision of the law. My position when I resigned was that of captain, brothers James that of colonel.

Simeon that of major, and the twins, George W. and Thomas L., that of staff officers. One was adjutant and the other paymaster.

ASA L. HAZELTON.

EXTRACT FROM A LETTER FROM F. E. FISH.*

My grandfather, Col. John Hazelton, was born in Rhode Island about the year 1700, and was married to Jane Wood of the same state not far from the year 1726. He went into the iron business in Salisbury, Conn. In the early part of his life he was engaged in the colonial service in the French and Indian War of 1754-63; he became wealthy in the iron business and about the close of the war removed to Townshend, Windham county, Vt., bought a large tract of land and settled on West river about twenty miles above Brattleborough where he resided until he died in Massachusetts in the year 1785, while away from home on business. My grandmother, Jane Wood Hazelton, was born March 4, 1706 and died February 16, 1810. Their children were as follows:

Paul, Asa, Silas, Peter; Rachel, married to Mr. Wood; Abigail, married to Mr. Barnard; Jennie, married to Mr. Butterfield; Mehitable, married to Gen. Samuel Fletcher; Elizabeth, married to Joshua Fish.

General Fletcher died Aug. 10, 1780; at fifty-six years; Joshua Fish died March, 1768.

*This communication, while containing much that is incorrect, no doubt has some statements of fact, and appears here for what it is worth.

My Grandmother Hazelton though a small lady was a very strong woman. At one time she lifted a trip hammer which weighed five hundred pounds. When her husband first settled in Vermont, being destitute of an oven, she carried stones in her apron from the river to the house, several rods distant, built an oven for herself and baked in it the same day. She took great delight in spinning. The day she was one hundred and one years old, she spun a day's work on a little wheel. When nearly a hundred years old she frequently visited her children with a child to lead her; she would walk to one of her son's, two or three miles from home in one day and after staying a day or two would go on to another son's, three or four miles farther. Yours,

ELIJAH L. FISH.

At the time of the breaking out of the Revolutionary War, the Hazeltons had nearly all left Massachusetts and had gone up into New Hampshire. A few families remained in Bradford, Haverhill, Amesbury and Methuen, but the larger portion of them had settled on New Hampshire lands. ROBERT M. HAZELTON (337).

Robert Montgomery⁷ Hazelton (Moses Greenleaf⁶, Moses⁵, James⁴, Richard³, Abraham², Robert¹) was born in Coitsville township, near Youngstown, Ohio, on March 11, 1846. (See page 46.) When less than one year of age his parents moved to Northfield in Summit county, Ohio, where his early boyhood was spent, receiving such school advantages as the district schools there afforded. Early in March, 1861, the family removed to Youngstown, Ohio, onto that portion of the old Montgomery farm which his mother had inherited; (this farm is now covered by the larger part of the manufacturing village of Haselton.) On January 30, 1862, the death of his father, Dr. Moses G. Hazelton, left him the head of the family at less than sixteen years of age. From this date until he became twenty years of age, his time was devoted to farming and wool growing and attending school a few months during each winter.

During the winter of 1866-7 he disposed of his wool growing interests. The building of the Lawrence branch railroad and the location of the iron works on the farm prompted the commencement of the village of Haselton; this made it possible for him in a great measure to give up active farming, and to return to his studies, which were commenced at the Poland Seminary. From there he went to the Tollestone Polytechnic Institute at Chicago, Illinois, from which he graduated as a civil and mining engineer in 1870. He then began the active practice of his profession. Politically he is a Republican, and during the following fall, was elected county surveyor of Mahoning county, Ohio, and assumed the duties of the office on January 1, 1871. This office he held for three years, when he declined a renomination, as his mining practice, which was more remunerative, had grown to such an extent as to require his entire time. This he followed as a specialty until April 1, 1888, when the Hon. Joseph B. Foraker, then Governor of Ohio, appointed him chief inspector of the mines of the state, which appointment the Senate unanimously confirmed. His term of office continued through the Democratic administration of Governor James E. Campbell, and on May 1, 1892. Governor Wm. McKinley, Jr., appointed him to a second term, which expires on April 30, 1896. His second wife having died, on May 18, 1892, he was married to Libbie F. Taylor of Syracuse, Meigs county, Ohio. He was one of the founders of the Ohio Institute of Mining Engineers in 1880 and remained one of the executive committee until January, 1886, when he was elected its president and re-elected in 1887. In 1889, he was elected secretary and treasurer, which position he has since held. At the May meeting of Ohio's Commissioners of the World's Columbian Exposition, he was selected to make Ohio's mineral exhibit at the World's Fair.

AMOS⁴ HAZELTON (Richard³, Abraham², Robert¹) born at Bradford, Mass., in 1717, was the son of Richard³ Hazelton 22, see page 24, and should be No. 44. He is mentioned in his father's will in 1747, and is given a portion of his Chester, N. H., lands. He is not mentioned in Chase's History of Chester, and not until this book was nearly printed, could any trace of him be found by the compiler. The discovery of Amos Hazelton's line would add a large number to the descendants of Robert the immigrant, but we are only able to give place to his family and some of his grandchildren. He married in 1745, Eunice Gilson who was born March 29, 1729.
